501(c)3 WHAT DOES THIS MEAN FOR THE FLORIDA WHIPS?

Recently the Florida Whips converted to a 501(c)(3) status. What does this mean?

The long, boring legalese answer? Section 501(c)(3) is the portion of the US Internal Revenue Code that allows for federal tax exemption of nonprofit organizations, specifically those that are considered public charities, private foundations or private operating foundations. It is regulated and administered by the US Department of Treasury through the Internal Revenue Service. The Florida Whips is registered as a Private Foundation with the IRS. The IRS defines a private foundation as "Every organization that qualifies for tax exemption as an organization described in section 501(c)(3) is a private foundation unless it falls into one of the categories specifically excluded from the definition of that term (referred to in section 509(a)). In addition, certain nonexempt charitable trusts are also treated as private foundations. Organizations that fall into the excluded categories are institutions such as hospitals or universities and those that generally have broad public support or actively function in a supporting relationship to such organizations." Which is to say, if you aren't a religious or political organization, you would probably be a private foundation. This would be the "all other" bucket.

Right, tl;dr.*

So what does it really mean? Aside from the fact that any donations to the FI Whips will now be tax deductible (within all the blah blah blah guidelines that I could regurgitate from the IRS, but will spare you), it means that the FL Whips can be recognized as a charitable organization with the purpose of educating the membership. And that means we are eligible for educational grants from the American Driving Society.

* in case you don't speak textspeak, "too long; didn't read"

MUSINGS FROM THE (NEW) EDITOR

Welcome back to the newsletter! As the new newsletter editor (say that fast five times), I ask you to bear with me as I figure out fun things like newsletter software, inserting images, layers and transparency. And by "fun" I mean $*%@ (the corgi and the cats are officially in hiding as I type this).

But back to introductions... Hi, I'm Denice and I live in Alpharetta, GA. For the geographically inclined amongst us, this is NOT in Florida. I lived in South Florida from the late 70's to late 90's, and apparently you go where you know, hence the reason I drive mostly south instead of east to Aiken/Windsor for driving events (Georgia is not exactly a driving mecca). Y'all have graciously welcomed me and my freshly love-bug encrusted vehicle every time I showed up and I thank you so much for that. For the welcome. Not the love-bugs.

So how did I get into driving? Pony. Pipe cart. The 70's. I'm not sure much more needs to be said, except it is a miracle the pony, the cart and I survived because "training" consisted of hitching up first and figuring out if the pony had a strong opinion about it after (she did not, thankfully). If any of you were around Davie, FL and Huck Lyles arena in the late 70's I may have run ~~over~~ into you at some point. My last (ancient) pleasure driving pony retired around 2004, I sold all my driving equipment and continued with my primary focus, showing hunters. But I always knew I would get back into driving someday. My bucket list was either Combined Driving OR driving roadster ponies at Devon, terrifying juniors and hunter princesses (c'mon, you know you want to do it).

This brings us to my friend and fellow Whip member, Anne Raisner. She started driving and at some point (amidst her posting way too many pictures of her having way too much fun driving Ellie) she said she was always jealous of the pictures of me driving Rebel...

Well guess who was jealous NOW? Good thing I look good in green.

Fast forward a year and I was looking for a new youngster to start since the current young hunter looked like he was taking the early retiree pasture puff route (he did). That's when I had one of those light bulb moments. Why wait to start driving? Why not now? I opted to get a fjord because if you are tapping into your bucket list, why wouldn't you pick a breed from your thirteen year old self's Dream Horse List?

In a moment of humor, I found a fjord for sale in December 2015. A lightly handled (very lightly) un-started 3.5 year old who lived in a pasture with his siblings and non-breeding fjords. A fjerl fjord as it were. At about the same time I found a marathon carriage for sale and snatched it right up before Morgan could change her mind. Then it briefly looked like the fjord might NOT be for sale, so I officially put the cart before the pony. Go me!

If you buy a fjerl fjord, things might not progress as fast as you want them to, and the business of training him to be a solid and trusting citizen on the ground and under saddle took longer than expected. I finally deemed him "ready" and sent him off for a winter of driving training in late 2017. I picked him up in March and showed up at the Southern Drive in May 2018 with just enough knowledge to not scare too many people. We started off the season at Camp Black Prong with a little more knowledge and capped off our first season competing with a return to the Southern Drive 2019.

Over the summer I compete in dressage (to help with the driven version, of course), but with the last "sandbox" show in the books over Labor Day weekend, it will be back to driving and I can't wait! It's been an amazing year, learning so much at the Southern Drive and Camp Black Prong, doing driving trials in between and meeting so many wonderful people. I know my non-driving friends are a little sick of hearing it, but you all know it: DRIVING PEOPLE ARE THE BEST PEOPLE, WHY DID I WAIT SO LONG?!?!? But I'm here now!

HUMAN HACKS FOR HORSES (AND HORSE PEOPLE)

HEART RATE MONITOR

Once upon a time, a long time ago, I remember when using horse items on people was considered quite the bargain opportunity... I'm looking at YOU Mane 'n Tail Conditioner and Absorbine Liniment. Those days are long gone. Now horse things have horse prices, and like everything horse related, it's rarely a bargain.

But we are nothing if not resourceful, so I invite (beg, implore and ask) fellow Whip members to submit their best Human Hacks for Horses ideas especially if it is driving related. I'll kick off this month with my latest find.

Heart Rate Monitor (for your horse). I started looking at these to see if I could improve Xander's fitness (always a challenge with a fjord) but a quick review of horse specific items on the internet and ... ouch.

Seriously, how much different could a human and a heart rate monitor be, especially now that we have so many bluetooth devices and phone apps? And funny thing, one "equine" brand looked suspiciously like a human brand in shape/size... So I took a risk and bought a human version. If it didn't work on Xander, I could track my own fitness regimen... Lift wine glass, set wine glass down, lift wine glass... You get the idea.

Items needed:

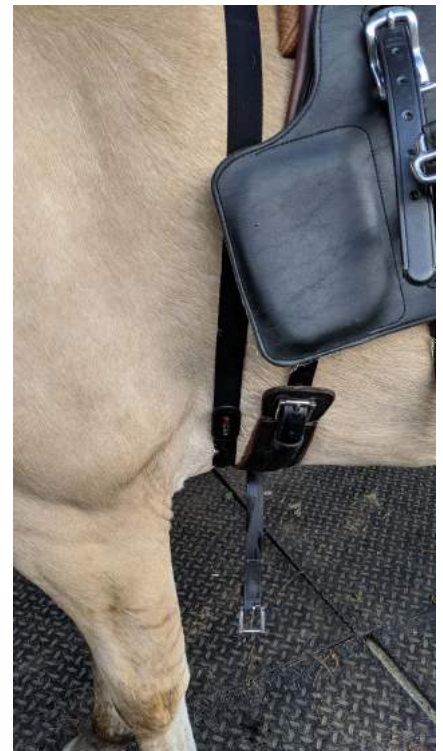

1. Polar10 Heart Rate Monitor/bluetooth only (M-XXL) - $80-$90 (Amazon)
2. No Buckle Stretch Belt - $3.36 (Amazon)
3. zip ties/electric tape (on hand)
4. Polar Flow App (android or iphone) - free

Cost of randomly selected horse version: $599

Here are all items I used. I made a zip tie loop on each end of the monitor (wrapped with electric tape so no rough/pointy bits to dig into the pony) to attach the No Buckle belt and turn it into a girth strap for horses instead of humans. After that, it is easy to tack on/off or adjust for girth size.

The heart rate monitor has a grippy/tacky underside which seems to help it stay stable while the horse is moving (the grippy area also has sensors/something that helps read the heart rate so it isn't like that tiny monitor has to be in EXACTLY the right spot for the entire drive). The instructions suggest dampening the underside of the band before putting it on, but I've found with a horse's coat you need to get the hair wet and dampen the underside of the band. I just sponge/spray Xan in the general area, also get the underside of the monitor damp.

HEART RATE MONITOR

I harness the pony then put the monitor on. Turn on the app, let it connect and reposition the monitor until I get a reading if necessary. After that, you are ready to go. The app has a large screen that is easy to read on the go and after you are done you can save your workout and get a reading of heart rate and speed (the bottom has a slider so you can see what the data as along the entire ride. I've never had it stop reading during a work. Also, I've used it while riding in a western saddle and a dressage saddle and never have any disruptions in readings with either saddle.

It's waterproof and suitable for (human) swimming, so you can leave it on while you cool off your horse after a fitness ride and get real time data on how fast the recovery is.

GETTING TIRED OF FJORD PICS?

While the editor thinks it is impossible to be tired of pictures of fjords, she recognizes that variety is the spice of life, so THIS PICTURE COULD BE OF YOU if you send in pics of you and your horses (including other fjords, of course) to newsletter @flawhips.org

Event Name: _____

Event Location/Address: _____

Property Owner/Additional Insured: _____

Event Date(s): _____

I, the undersigned (Releasor), on my behalf and on the behalf of my heirs, assigns, and successors in interest, and on behalf of my minor child(ren), or those persons or individuals for whom I am responsible acknowledge and understand the following:

- The inherent risks involved in riding, driving, and working around horses, and those risks listed in Florida Statutes § 773.01(6) (2012)
- The entities described above, including Florida Whips, Inc. and any sponsors, property owners, or additional insureds, and or equine professionals associated with the above described events (collectively described as "Sponsors") will not be held responsible for any injury, death, damage, or loss to or by animals or equipment, including without limitation equines, canines, carriages, equipment use, for the care, or use of the animals or equines. This includes, but is not limited to damage by fire, theft, animal, human and/or equipment collision, escape and acts of God.
- In consideration for the privilege of participating in activities related with the activities located on or related to the Sponsors' property, equipment, equines, or animals, the undersigned Releasors expressly agree to assume the risk for any and all injury, loss or damage and agree to release, hold harmless, and indemnify Sponsors, together with all their agents/employees from any and all claims of injury, loss, damage or death caused by, resulting from or in any way related to the inherent risks of equine activities.
- Releasors agree that all farrier, veterinarian and medical expenses, including emergency care treatment are the sole responsibility of the owner of the animals on behalf of whom such services are rendered.
- Releasors expressly covenant not to sue or make claim against Sponsors, their heirs, successors, assigns, agents, servants or employees for any injury, loss, damage or death caused by, resulting from, or in any way related to any of the inherent risks of equine activities.
- Should any individual provision of this release agreement be declared null, void and unenforceable, all other provisions shall be in full force and effect. In the event of any claim or litigation arising out of this agreement, the prevailing party shall be entitled to attorneys fees and costs. This is a legally binding agreement and each party has the right to seek and obtain the opinion of separate counsel before executing this document.

Releasor agrees to the safety rules of the Florida Whips, Inc including but not limited to the following as described at www.flawhips.org:

- Vehicles and harness must be serviceable, and in good repair.
- Horses must have bridles on with reins attached prior to hitching to a vehicle.
- Vehicles must be unhitched prior to removing reins and bridles. Never tie a horse or leave it unattended when hitched to a vehicle.
- Driver must have a whip and carry it in hand while in motion.
- Never pass another carriage at a fast trot or drive too close to another carriage. It is recommended that the driver of the passing vehicle get permission of the vehicle in front to do so.
- Consumption of alcohol is not permitted during Florida Whips events.
